Panelist:
Prof Gubela Mji

Moderator
Dr Nasreen Jessani

Being a researcher who wants to influence policy or practice change can be intimidating and foreign. However, the increasing importance of knowledge translation to enhance evidence-informed decision making (EIDM) is quickly becoming an important skill set amongst the research community. Join us for these global health webinars to understand how students, post-docs, and faculty are pushing the boundaries as they navigate the EIDM ecosystem.

Panelist stories will include experiences on some of these issues below:

Training for Science journalism: Media as conduit to public advocacy

Engagement and advocacy makes conducting an RCT in 5 countries seem like a walk in the park

AfriNEAD: a panAfrican network advocating for evidence-informed disability rights
